

Annual General Meeting and Networking event Feeling the Pressure: Planetary health, participatory democracy and you

When: 10.00am to 3.30pm on Friday 10 January 2020

Where: Room 1.18 Paterson's Land, Moray House School of Education and Sport, Holyrood Road, Edinburgh

2020 is an extremely important year for planetary health. In November the world's 190+ nations must commit to deep cuts in greenhouse gas emissions at the UN's COP26 conference in Glasgow. With awareness of the climate and nature crisis rising in Scotland and the arrival of this critical conference in November, our 2019 AGM asks: what connects the climate and nature crisis, democracy and you?

Outline Programme

10:00 Arrival, coffee/tea, registration and choose your two skill share sessions

10:30 Learning for Sustainability Scotland- an Update

Welcome

Updates on the National and Global context for Learning for Sustainability, and from LfS Scotland.
Steering Group elections

11:00 Table Discussions- interactive sessions to discuss LfS Scotland Task Groups and contributions to Learning for Sustainability Vision 2030+ Action Plan

11:30 Shaping the next generation of global citizens

Keri Reid OBE and pupils, Muthill Primary School, Perth and Kinross

11:45 Skills for Engagement: Pick two of these sessions, when you register, from:

Dealing with Eco-Anxiety: Adele Clarke, Nature Culture Network

How do we ensure that we as individuals remain nourished, can contribute effectively to flourishing communities and support our organisations and institutions to be compassionate and wise in the face of local and global challenges?

Engaging communities in environmental and social justice: Dr Eurig Scandrett, Queen Margaret University Communities are places where people can learn informally to address a range of issues of social and environmental justice – how do professionals and activists engage with communities to take action for sustainability?

Preparing for COP 26: Caroline Rance, Climate Campaigner, Friends of the Earth Scotland

The UN climate summit (COP26) will be held in Glasgow in November, bringing thousands of civil society representatives to the city and shining a spotlight on Scotland's climate action. Join this session for an overview of what actually happens at these summits, how to get involved this year and how we can use this opportunity to advance climate action here in Scotland.

13:00 NETWORKING LUNCH: Bring your posters, pamphlets and questions

13:45 Keynote: Responsible Debate for a Sustainable Future

Dr Alice König, University of St Andrews and Dr Peter McColl, We are Snook
The RSE Young Academy of Scotland

14:30 Feedback and Feed-future

We will capture reflections on the day to inspire future work for LfS Scotland, but also for individual members.

15:00 Key points from the day and looking ahead

15:30 Formal business complete: A further chance to network with colleagues and friends old and new

Getting there

The AGM is in Paterson's Land room 1.18. For a map of Moray House, University of Edinburgh, follow this link <https://www.ed.ac.uk/maps/maps?building=patersons-land>

